Salty Sam had a dinghy and a bag full of oranges.

“Please can we go with you?” asked Milly and Molly.

“Orange peelers,” grinned Salty Sam. “You’re just what I need.”

Milly and Molly sat at the stern peeling oranges while Salty Sam sat at the bow catching fish.

“Save one for my little dolphin,” he said.

“He takes it to a child on the other side of the world who doesn’t have fresh fruit like you do.”

With that, the little dolphin suddenly appeared from nowhere.

“If I had a thousand oranges, I could still do with more,” said the little dolphin.

“My friend has thousands of friends who don’t have fresh fruit like you do.”

The Milly, Molly series of books have been written to promote the acceptance of diversity and sound principles for character education.

A storm, four kind hearts and enough fruit for everyone.

Theme: Social responsibility

“Milly, Molly is a wonderful bunch of books. A real find.”

Robert Munsch: Noted author of bestselling children’s books.

“The underlying morals inherent within the texts are important for children of the twenty-first century to take as their own... the language used to carry the stories is lively and exciting for young readers... the language and style is simply good literature... suitable as teaching texts in social studies or health programs anywhere in the world where difference is an integral component of a community”

Professor Dr. Sigrid Markmann: Dean of the Faculty of Literature and Linguistics - University of Osnabrück, Germany
